SOCIETY OF VOICE ARTS & SCIENCES™

and congratulates
this year's nominees

HBO®

To the Voice Arts Community:

By community, I refer to all the people who collaborate in one form or another to bring about the work that sustains our livelihoods and sense of accomplishment. The voice arts community is the hub around which we all come together. Anything can happen at this intersection and all of us can help determine the outcome.

We are not simply spectators of the industry, watching it take shape around us. We are the shapers, actively breathing new life into its ever-changing form. We do this by bringing our best selves to the process with the intention of attending to the work with professionalism, respect, creativity and the spirit of collaboration, so that we may all enjoy gainful employment.

I am thrilled to be a part of the magic that is the Voice Arts® Awards. It is an enchanted world of acknowledgment and encouragement and it honors the best in all of us. It is not about being better than someone else. It is about being your best. Tonight we celebrate our esteemed jurors. We celebrate the entrants, nominees and the soon to be named recipients of the top honor. This is our night.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Rudy Gaskins". The signature is fluid and cursive.

Rudy Gaskins

» TLM 102
Small mic. Big sound.

“I coach numerous emerging voiceover actors who really have to watch their spending as they build their careers. But there’s no minor leagues in the voiceover business. The Neumann TLM 102 allows newcomers to enter at a professional level without sacrificing quality or breaking the bank.”

- Joan Baker, author of ‘Secrets of Voiceover Success’

12 VANGUARD AWARD WINNING VO TRICKS

FROM PATRICK FRALEY

1 ROBERT REDFORD'S "START & RESTART REALISTIC DIALOGUE TRICK."

There are those times when you will have the power to change words in a voice over project. If you are challenged with making the dialogue more realistic, here's a trick, which Robert Redford uses in most every movie he's ever done. A character will start a thought, get a better way of putting it, and go on with the better way of communicating the thought. For example –

"Morgan is serving five years for aggravated – he's in the slammer for busting a guy up bad."

2 MONTGOMERY CLIFF'S, "READ IT LIKE A FIRST GRADER" TECHNIQUE.

This is a technique that is attributed to the great stage and film actor, Montgomery Cliff. When he would first read a script, he would read it carefully, word by word, making sure he was not performing. Why? He said that since he didn't know what was on the pages, he couldn't make any intelligent choices to realize the scene or story with performance. If he did perform it prematurely, it could very well lead him into choices that didn't realize the story. This is the kind of work I do alone, and prior to a read with other actors or with the director.

3 THE PERFECT WORD TRICK.

If I don't have control of the text or the ability to change words, I will occasionally take time or a pause prior to saying a word (particularly if it's a strange or complex word) to give the impression that I just thought of it or chose it carefully. It's rather like paralleling the author's journey during his or her first draft.

"About two weeks ago, I was talking to my boss about the... "potentiality" of a raise.

4 THE ONE WAY NEVER TO SLATE.

Dead. By that I mean, without personality. It's a habit performers get into as they do audition after audition. They sound serious, even bored and have it in their mind that it doesn't count. In an audition, everything counts from your first fricative. Consider the listener. Someone is listening to dozens, if not hundreds of auditions in a row. The first thing they hear is a performer who doesn't reveal personality, and perhaps sound bored.

5 "KILLER DIALECT CATCH PHRASE" TRICK.

There will come a time when you will be asked if you can do a particular accent or dialect, and a director or producer will want you to give them a "taste." Don't trot out an improvised sentence or passage. Have a sentence that you know well, which shows off your abilities in the best light and includes many of the sound adjustments and changes you must make to perform the dialect correctly. I refer to these as "Killer Dialect Catch Phrases." It is best if you make up your own. Here are a couple that work for me.

British: All that glitters is not gold.

Russian: I have to grab little rodent for to ring his neck.

6 NEVER SWING ON "AND" REMINDER

The habit of connecting two products, services, or general concepts with a conjunctive came from advertising. "It's delicious, kids love'em AND it's good for you." It makes no sense to use valuable emphasis on a conjunctive, AND especially by getting loud for emphasis.

Conjunctive Lines

We can get all the kids, water toys in the car AND the dog.

That's what she said, SO, I guess we'll have to submit.

We don't make rude noises, NOR two we open our mouths while we chew.

7 BATS & RATS TECHNIQUE

Give a long tight "Cartoon Kiss" into your open palm. That should generate a high-pitched sound. Wiggle your palm as you do. The perfect bat or rat. What's the difference between Bat and Rats and a Cartoon Kiss? One's more fun.

8 COMMIT TO ONE CHOICE MINDSET

Before you send in two takes for an audition, consider two factors.

1. Which of the performances realizes the story best?

2. When you send in two takes, you are begging for a comparison between the two? That means someone is in a position to decide one is not as good as the other.

9 QUIET AND CLOSE AGENDA.

Be on the lookout for any scene or line where you can perform it as if you were in a close-up shot. Actors tend to work as if they were on stage, rather than in film. Just because there is an exclamation mark at the end of the sentence doesn't mean it has to be loud. Sure, if the line is, "May Day! May Day!" you'll need to get loud, but many don't need to be performed with volume.

Quiet and Close Lines

"I've told you before, I'm not going to wait!

"Who's in charge here!"

"Ladies and Gentlemen. May I have your attention."

10 DON'T BE IN THE MOMENT TECHNIQUE

This flies in the face of what is taught in acting school, but sometimes people are distracted, doing something in addition to talking to someone. It creates a different sound. Look for moments in scripts, text and copy, where a character is doing something as well as talking to someone.

11 THE SOUND OF THINKING MIC TECHNIQUE

The convention in voice over for thinking is quiet, as if to oneself. To make it effective, you need to marry your hushed tones (not whispered) with close microphone technique. In text, particularly in books, when a character is thinking, it is in italics. What you do is go from standard mic position, to close mic, which is 2 or three inches from the mic. That way, you will be at the same relative volume as your performance with more volume, farther away, but it will fulfill the convention of thinking.

12 "WHEN THE TEXT GETS HOT, GET COLD TECHNIQUE."

This is from the audiobook narration world, but I apply it to all mediums. As a performer, you are partners with the text. When a passage in a book, or scene gets provocative or evocative like sensual or grisly passages, back off your expressiveness and attitude toward the material. Why? You want to leave plenty of room for the listener to experience their emotional journey rather than yours.
